WELCOME TO THE FUTURE

This could be the scene which greets future visitors to Ashford as they leave the town's domestic railway station. Planners want to create an Italian-style piazza at the station forecourt which will include better transport links for buses and bicycles and improved seating areas. An exhibition of designs will be displayed at the station on Tuesday, from 7am until 7pm.

■ BY ED HILL

ASHFORD should not miss the opportunity to give St Mary's Church a greater role, says the new man in charge of the diocese.

The new Bishop of Dover, the Rt Rev Trevor Willmott, who is responsible for the east Kent Diocese on behalf of the Archbishop of Canterbury, was speaking during a tour of St Mary's given by the vicar of the town centre church, the Rev Colin Preece.

A £1.6 million project funded by the borough council and the diocese will see the creation of a performance space in the church which will be used for theatre and worship.

The plans have been criticised by churchgoers and the Victorian Society, who argue it could damage the building's architecture.

But the Bishop said the church would just be reverting to its historic role.

He said: "My first reaction is one of excitement at re-establishing the church for common use because what it actually does is link the church and the community together."

The Bishop said staging performances and events would not weaken St Mary's role as a place of worship and will give the town another much-needed arts venue.

He told Yourashford: "The Church, since its origins, has served the community. These places were always intended to be community buildings in which prayer is offered, but that prayer is surrounded and shot through with the life of the community."

He also argued the alterations were just a part of the church's long history. He said: "The

Bosses making assurances over college merger

■ BY ED HILL

A MEETING was held on Monday to reassure staff at South Kent College campus about the upcoming merger with West Kent College.

Last week it emerged that union leaders feared the tie up with West Kent College would result in an asset stripping exercise and loss of jobs.

Pat Gorman local chairman of the Universities and Colleges Union said: "We are not opposed to merger; we are simply opposed to being forced into this merger in this way, with this partner."

But on Monday West Kent Principal, Bill Fearon, spent the day visiting the college's campuses in Ashford, Folkestone and Dover trying to reassure staff what the merger would mean.

Both colleges' governors agreed to sign up to the deal which would result in a new college called Kent Invicta College but members of South Kent College teaching staff said they felt they had been excluded from the discussions.

Sandy Fleming from South Kent College said: "Mr Fearon was introducing people to his team who will be working with our team as well."

"The day was about meeting staff face to face and telling them what the plans are so far what the consultation process will be. We will be talking to everybody about the best way forward. Staff will be kept fully informed of the process from here on in."

"There was no point in doing that until now because the agreement had not gone through. It would have not been appropriate and against the protocol of the Learning Skills Council."

Earlier this year West Kent College had threatened to pull out of the merger because it said it could not support South Kent College's debts of £4.9 million. However the college

FOR SALE: South Kent College wants to sell Jemmett Road site to reduce its £4.9m debt based in Tonbridge is currently undergoing its own £70 million rebuilding programme.

The merger still has to be agreed by the Minister of State by the end of the month but funding for post 16 education looks like it will undergo radical changes after the general election, whatever party comes to power.

Ms Fleming said that Monica Box, the current principal at South Kent College, which also includes the Ashford School of Art and Design, had kept everyone informed as far as possible but if the deal was not signed there was only so far she could go because it might have fallen through.

She said: "There will still be thousands of students in south Kent who will require educating and someone will have to do it and will most likely be the people who were doing it before."

In a poll of college staff, 133 voted against the merger with only one in favour.

Uncertainty about the South Kent College's future has meant plans to build a Learning Skills Centre as part of Ashford's growth plans have had to be aborted.

Bishop praises exciting new role for church

Victorians did to the churches what they had to do for their use, in their time.

"A church building is not static. It is a living building and every generation has tried to adapt its buildings for its own use."

The bishop was enthusiastic about the designs and even suggested elements that could be included which would give local people more input, such as stained glass featuring images of the town's history.

He said the quality of the work needed to be the best possible.

"Whatever happens to St Mary's, we must do it to the best of our ability," he said. "It must be worthy of the church's calling."

"It may have been that in the past – such as the 1960s and '70s – we did things that we didn't get right, even if they were done with the best motives, and that makes people hesitant."

"They weren't done as worthily as they should have been, but we want this building to breathe and live for the sake of the community."

"Future generations will stand in judgement against us if we do not."

Workers raise hospice cash

THREE workers at Premier Foods in Willesborough have raised more than £1,200 for the Pilgrims Hospice.

Marion O'Donnell, Linda Hammond and Bev Clarke raised the money by organizing the company's Christmas Disco.

They added to the total by putting on a book sale at the factory's club. Premier Foods manufactures high street brands such as Bachelors Cup-a-Soup.

Sharon Burberry, fundraising and marketing assistant of Pilgrims Hospice in Ashford, accepted the cheque for £1,293.

Marion O'Donnell said "We have supported the Pilgrims Hospice now for several years with our annual Christmas Disco."

We all have a great night whilst raising vital funds for a very worthy local charity."

More renovation plans at station

IT SEEMS that as soon as one set of improvements is finished at Ashford station the next is just round the corner.

Now the extension to the ticket office has been completed planners are moving onto the station forecourt.

The designs show a less congested area with clear links to the town centre. Its main feature will be a public square with new seating, landscaping and walkways and better access for cyclists and pedestrians.

An exhibition of the new plans is going on display at the station on March 23 between 7am and 7pm.

Representatives of Ashford's Future and Optimum Consultancy will be there to answer questions and discuss any concerns.

The improvements will mirror the changes that have already taken place at the station ticket hall which

ALL CHANGE: (L-R) Artist's impression of new Ashford station forecourt and last week's opening ceremony for the extension of the ticket office held an official opening ceremony last week.

The ceremony was attended by local MP Damian Green and representatives of others involved in the project, including train operator Southeastern.

Mr Green said: "We now have a world class station to go with a world class train service so this is a big day for Ashford."

"For a century or so Ashford was known as a railway town and this new station will mean it has a lot to offer people in the future."

The £2.5 million improvements are being paid for through government's Growth Area Funding as part of a programme of projects coordinated by Ashford's Future.

A planning application for the forecourt is due to be submitted shortly. Work should start in June 2010 and finish in spring 2011.

Couple hand over soup kitchen after 22 years

■ BY ED HILL

FOR 22 years Cyril and Shirley Bishop have been organising a soup kitchen for homeless people in the town.

But now they have decided it is time to hand the ladle to someone else.

Mr Bishop, 67, said: "I have a few health problems, so it is time that I slowed down, but we do have someone who has agreed to take it over."

The Bishops started the service when the number of people sleeping rough on Ashford's streets was a lot higher.

He said: "There were about a dozen people on the streets and we felt we ought to help and give them a hot meal. We have had quite a few regulars and others who are just passing through. It has been a very varied mix of people, both men and women."

The soup kitchen has been run every Thursday evening since 1988 from the back of the Centrepont church in Bank Street.

A homeless man who had been a regular visitor to the soup kitchen said: "This is one of the best places I know. They really do look after you here. If it was not for people like this we would not be alive."

Mr Bishop said things had improved considerably for the homeless over the years and now all his visitors are usually housed in hostel-type accommodation, but that has not stopped them turning up.

He said: "If they're in a flat on their own I still think they like to get together and have a talk

VOLUNTEERS: Cyril and Shirley Bishop have been running the soup kitchen from the back of Centrepont Church in Bank Street for more than 22 years with one another and watch a bit of television. At least they know we will have a bit of dinner for them."

About 25 volunteers take it in turns to help the couple on a rota and the food is donated by local schools and churches.

The couple will be running their last session on March 25, when two of their current helpers will be taking over.

However, in the long term the soup kitchen needs to find another base before the Centrepont building is sold or demolished.

Mr Bishop said: "I am proud that my wife and I have managed to keep it going all these years. I could not have operated it without her."

"We normally give them a cup of tea while we are cooking the dinner and then give them some food to take away with them, sandwiches and rolls, and the odd bit of clothing."

Mr Bishop is also a regular at the Ashford Volunteer Bureau, vice president of the royal British Legion, member of the League of friends at Ashford Hospital and supporter of the Willesborough Windmill.

Woman attacked at petrol station

POLICE are hunting three men who assaulted a woman driver at a petrol station.

The attack happened at the Shell petrol station in Somerset Road, Ashford at about 2.30am on Saturday, March 6.

The 20-year-old driver had just parked her car and was getting her coat from the boot when she was approached by three men who asked for directions.

When she was unable to help them they turned verbally abusive and one of them punched her in the face, causing her to fall to the ground and leaving her with a black eye. They then ran off in the direction of Farm Foods.

One was 6ft to 6ft 4in tall, of medium build, with spiky, dark brown collar-length hair and wore a dark shirt with white pinstripes and a pair of jeans.

Anyone with information is asked to contact PC Philip Butcher at Ashford Police Station on 01622 690690 or email 12701@kent.pnn.police.uk

Plea after thugs rob dog walker

THREE thugs who robbed a man in Victoria Park as he walked his dog are being hunted by police.

The 32-year-old was in the park at about 3pm on March 2 when three men came up behind him.

They demanded cash and he handed over his wallet. The three men walked off in the direction of the flats in Victoria Park.

One of the offenders is described as white, aged 30 to 40, wearing blue jeans, and a dark tracksuit jacket top. He spoke with an eastern European accent, possibly Polish.

Call police on 01622 690690 or Crimestoppers on 0800 555111.

Stolen goods are returned

A 93-YEAR-OLD woman has been reunited with her jewellery after it was stolen by a man posing as a window cleaner.

The woman did not realise she had been burgled until she was contacted by police making house-to-house enquiries after a man was arrested on Thursday, March 4.

The jewellery included a charm bracelet, a gold chain bracelet, a gold chain necklace with gold chain pendant, a pair of clip-on gold earrings and a gold neck chain.

A man was arrested after complaints from Newtown Green, Orion Way and Wainwright Place that a man had been knocking on doors and demanding money for work that had not been done.

He was arrested on suspicion of burglary in Hunter Road.

Ashford police are promoting a nominated neighbour scheme run in conjunction with Neighbourhood Watch which allows residents to give the name of a trusted neighbour or a family member who lives nearby. Callers have to contact the nominated person before entering an address.

For details call the Community Safety Unit, Ashford Police station, 01233 660747.

Ian Bullen, 42, of Park Road North, has been charged with burglary and is held on remand until a court appearance.

Council wants your views on sites for new gypsy camps

ASHFORD council is looking for more permanent sites for gypsies and travellers, and has asked people to suggest locations.

New government targets mean that councils across the UK have been asked to review their policy towards the travelling community.

Gypsies and travellers often miss out on health and education and are one of the most deprived groups in the country.

Ashford has produced a report outlining the various issues that affect travellers in the borough. It does not identify any sites but it does suggest ways people can nominate new pitches they think are suitable.

The document is called The Gypsy, Travellers and Travelling Show people Accommodation Issues and Options Report.

The areas covered include finding sites, making such sites suitable, the best size and type of site, how they will be managed and options for the gypsy and traveller site at Chilmington.

Ashford has been asked to provide 30 pitches by regional government and three sites for show people, although the council has appealed against this figure as it considers it far higher than the demand when it carried out its own survey.

It is hoped that the process will lead to a clearer planning policy when it comes to allocating pitches for gypsies.

At present temporary planning permission is often granted on appeal because the development plan document is not yet in place.

Community groups and organisations as well as interested members of the public and travellers are asked to submit their views on the report before April 22.

Copies are available at the Civic Centre, Tenterden Gateway Ashford Library in Church Road and Charing and Wye Libraries.

It can also be found online at <http://ashford-consult.limehouse.co.uk/portal>, or call 01233 330229.

NEW HOME: Retired Metropolitan Police horse Burghley arrives at the Rare Breeds Centre in Woodchurch

Farm welcomes retired police horse Burghley

A FORMER Metropolitan Police horse has swapped days dealing with riots and crowd control for a quieter life with at the Rare Breeds Centre in Woodchurch.

Burghley, or Buzz as he is known, is 16-years-old, but has a slight heart problem.

He was bought by the London force in 1998. During his time with the Met he spent time patrolling West Hampstead and Kings Cross and finally ended his stint in Lewisham.

Nikki Sara, from the Rare Breeds Centre, said: "We went up to see him several times and fell in love straight away.

"We like to think he'll be a new face here for the visitors to get to know. He is a very cheeky chappy with a great character."

Buzz took part in demonstration rides for the public when he was stabled in London but in 2008 he was moved to the police's Imber Court Centre in Thames Ditton, where new officers train with horses in dealing with riots, crowd control and traffic.

The history of using horses for policing dates back to 1760, when they were introduced to deal with the growing problem of highwaymen.

■ BY ED HILL

Their modern role of policing crowds dates to 1905 when commanders realised having a high mounted police officer above people's heads was an advantage when controlling a crowd. At Imber Court, Buzz also helped train rookie horses for police work, but because of a minor ailment can no longer take part in all the exercises required to train new horses and riders.

He will spend his time at the Rare Breeds Centre, run by Canterbury Oast Trust, which gives people with learning disabilities the chance to work on the farm.

Ms Sara said: "He is going to live with three black Shetland ponies and two donkeys. He will do a little bit of work to keep him fit.

"It's great to have a big horse on the farm with such a lovely history.

"Our previous horse, Arthur, had been with us for 20 years and was much loved by all the visitors who came here. Children particularly like to see a big horse."

NEWS IN BRIEF

NHS budget pilot project

VOLUNTEERS who want to manage their own NHS budget are being sought for a pilot project. The Department of Health wants people to get involved in planning their own personal budgets for health and social care.

Under the controversial scheme, run as a partnership between NHS Eastern and Coastal Kent and Kent County Council, the patient or carer decides what services they wish to receive, within a set budget.

It will involve 75 patients using services in maternity care, end of life care, continuing health care and mental health.

Project manager Gina Walton said: "We are looking for people who can have an input into the design and approach of the project. The group will meet monthly to start with."

The first meeting will be at Ashford Gateway on April 1.

Email Georgina.Walton@kent.gov.uk or call 01303 717029 to find out more.

Shoplifter caught by Net

THE Town Net radio system led to the arrest of a man who was chased through County Square, Ashford.

Christopher Blaber, 26, admitted charges of shoplifting, possessing a knife and possessing cannabis, at Ashford Magistrates' Court.

Blaber, from Chatham, was chased after a trader reported a theft from one of the outlets at the centre. Town Net links stores and businesses to the police by radio and CCTV.

PCSOs recovered discarded stolen property, while a patrol officer arrested and searched Blaber and a found a craft knife and cannabis. He will remain in custody until sentencing on March 26.

Suspect followed by car

POLICE arrested a suspected thief after a member of the public followed his car. Philip Goldstone, 48, from Folkestone, was stopped by police after he left a business in Brook Street, Woodchurch, on Saturday.

A motorist helped officers by keeping track of his vehicle until it could be stopped. Two people in the car were arrested. Goldstone has been charged with theft, drug possession and traffic offences. He was bailed to appear in court on Monday. His passenger, a 24-year-old woman, was released without charge.

Temporary posting for NHS trust boss

ANN Sutton, the chief executive of NHS Eastern and Coastal Kent Primary Care Trust, is temporarily moving to lead health services in Surrey.

David Meikle, her deputy, will become acting chief executive while she is away.

Ms Sutton will stay in Surrey until a permanent appointment is made.

She said: "I hope to bring my leadership experience and knowledge of the NHS and healthcare to ensure the NHS in Surrey continues to deliver quality services."

Colin Tomson, chairman of NHS Eastern and Coastal Kent, said: "In Ann's absence we will continue to work hard, as an organisation and with the community, in delivering our ambitions for the best healthcare for the people of eastern and coastal Kent."

Thieves spring locks

NEIGHBOURHOOD officers are warning allotment owners to be extra security conscious as spring approaches.

PCSO Nikki Relf said: "I've had two reports of shed break-ins in Kennington and in both cases garden equipment was stolen. One of the sheds housed a strimmer, mower, and camping equipment; the other contained clothing."

"Sheds on allotments are vulnerable to opportunist thieves, but it's possible to make them less appealing."

"A shed alarm with more than one sturdy lock may deter an offender. Marking all property will enable the police to return any recovered items."

Ex-spymaster Dame Stella urges HR conference to embrace change

Cold War thaw made a world of difference

■ BY STEVE LOADER

DAME Stella Rimington, the former boss of MI5, explained the challenges of international espionage to delegates at the Ashford International Hotel recently.

Addressing visitors to the Motive8 human resources conference, she used the example of how the changing world of international espionage affected managers and staff in the security agencies, as the certainties of the Cold War gave way the threat of terrorism.

She said: "It was a very different problem. Tried and trusted methods used against the Soviet Union were no use any more."

"If you followed a spy during the Cold War he would usually try to elude you; follow a terrorist and he was likely to shoot you."

Dame Stella retired from the MI5 in 1996. She is often thought to have been the inspiration behind Dame Judy Dench's character 'M' in the James Bond movies and now writes spy fiction herself.

At the conference she spoke about how MI5 transformed from a chauvinistic and almost paranoid department into a modern organisation.

When she joined in 1969, MI5 recruited people by "tapping them on the shoulder". Bosses were remote and junior staff often de-motivated, with female staff regarded as second-class citizens.

Dame Stella was also a symbol of the change herself when sent to Moscow in 1991 to make friendly contact with the KGB - by then an ally in the war against terrorism. She was the first spy chief to be publicly named.

She said: "Our leaders now required things to change. More openness was needed, more international contacts and often very different methods."

TOP JOB: Dame Stella Rimington was head of MI5

She summed up her speech by saying: "Change is continuous. Just when you think you have sorted something out and you can get on with your core jobs, you have to face change and get on with it."

One of the organisers of Motive8, Kent County Council director of personnel and development Amanda Beer, backed Dame Stella's sentiments.

She said: "We have needed to get smarter and faster. Then again, we can be our own worst enemy because so much of what we do is about making sure the right managers and resources are in place. If we have to keep intervening, then we are failing."

The first Motive8 was held in 2006 now it has opened up to public and private sectors it is expected to become an annual event.

QUESTION & ANSWER

RONALD LELLO

Q Tell me something about yourself.

A Having spent most of our life together working, bringing up family and studying in London, my wife and I moved to Sellindge some 16 years ago. We were very lucky to find a period house in which we could entertain. I support a Trust which has international connections and we host small gatherings of writers and artists. We were also lucky that the house has a large garden which keeps both of us fully occupied.

Q What would you say is Sellindge's appeal?

A Sellindge constantly surprises one. It has such amazing pockets of wonder like the river behind the railway line where I have seen kingfishers and egrets or the folds of land and quarry behind Stone Hill. And then of course there are the people who live here.

Q How did you first become involved in the anti-sludge plant campaign?

A When we learned we were to be threatened by the proposed recycling plant at Otterpool Lane I went to a meeting, advocated a young man to establish a residents group but they ended up electing me to do the job and I have been working with a great team of people ever since. Sellindge, Lympne, Newingreen and Stanford have a terrific spirit and the threat of the recycling plant and the madness of building a lorry park at the other end of the village has brought about a real sense of unity here.

Q What effect do you believe such a plant could have on the village of Sellindge?

A The extension of the industrial link park and the proposed lorry park are evidence of a wider movement of industrialisation that must be resisted.

This is a rural area and that is why people want to live here.

Why spoil places like Westenhangar Castle, Port Lympne and the racecourse which are major tourist attractions?

Why bring ruin to the splendid Airport Café serving 50,000 meals a year or endanger the health of people living and working in the 21 houses and businesses close to the quarry?

Q What do you think of the proposed thousands of houses and lorry park near Junction 11?

A Can you imagine pouring millions of tons of concrete all over the land between Aldington and Sellindge just to accommodate lorries on the few days there are problems on the ferries?

There are 7,500 HGVs going in and out of Dover each day and by the time the park is built this is expected to rise to 13,000 and probably more. What use then for a park which will only hold 3,000 HGVs – not enough space even for one day. So of course they will want to cover even more land with concrete – they'll end up burying all of us.

Q What do you think could be done to improve and enhance the quality of life for people in Sellindge?

A Sellindge should be given back its village green which was enclosed way back in 1810, by the family of the farmer who now owns the Otterpool quarry. We could build houses and a pub and a new village hall around it and it would give Sellindge the centre it deserves.

Q How can people find out more about your campaign and get involved?

A If you would like to support the Residents Association you can find details on www.slurry.org.uk or phone 01303 813 140.

Q What do you like to do in your spare time?

A The old saying 'The price of freedom is eternal vigilance' means watching as things happen now. It does not mean feeling guilty about the past or worrying about the future. But living in the present is difficult and one needs encouragement.

I belong to a group of friends called The Millennium Trust who meet regularly to explore how this kind of idea can become a practical reality in the way we live.

You can get the details on our website at www.millenniumtrust.co.uk.

Manners matter, say homeowners

PLUMBERS should watch their Ps and Qs – a survey in Ashford found good manners are one of the main things people consider when hiring tradesmen.

The poll, carried out by the Electrical Contractors Association, found that 85 per cent of homeowners said that after price and reputation, good manners would land a tradesman a contract.

It also showed that 64 per cent thought clean clothes were important and 34 per cent also thought a smart van and uniform created a good impression.

However, Howard Salmon, ECA south east regional manager said: "Ask friends and neighbours to recommend tradesmen they have used before and then get a range of quotes."

Council sells fields to improve roads

THE council has agreed to sell land so improvements can be made to the Drovers roundabout on the A28.

The areas include two small fields close to the roundabout, along with some more near junction nine of the M20.

It is hoped the alterations will enable the roads to deal with more capacity on the main route through to Tenterden and improve the route for cars leaving the motorway. The land will be transferred to Kent Highway services so it can carry out the work later this year.

The alterations did receive some objections from residents, but the council, is keen to see project go ahead as it is seen as a major improvement to the town's infrastructure.

The hole truth about the M20 water tunnel

SOUTHERN Water says it has nearly completed a major tunnelling project to upgrade the town's water system.

Nearly three miles of pipeline have been laid from the Orbital Business Park at Waterbrook to Bybrook Wastewater Treatment Works at Canterbury Road.

One of the last sections of work to be completed is the crossing of the M20 motorway at Cradle Bridge Drive, in Willesborough.

It is being carried out using special no-dig technology, so engineers can cross the M20 motorway without disrupting the traffic.

Yet, despite the name, the first part of the operation involved digging a five-metre deep shaft into the ground so the machine could be placed ready for tunnelling.

Once it was in the ground it began to work its way along the pipeline route at a rate of one mile per hour, using a rotating cutting wheel at the front of the machine to bore a tunnel more than 10 feet in diameter.

The machine uses laser technology to ensure it follows the correct route. As the tunnel is dug, the machine pushes pipework into the tunnel at the same time.

■ BY ED HILL

The water company is also constructing a new pumping station at Alsops Road in South Willesborough to finally complete the project.

Southern Water's senior project engineer Gary Sayers said: "Every effort has been made to minimise disruption. We would like to thank local businesses and residents for their continuing collaboration, patience and understanding."

The scheme is part of Southern Water's five-year environmental multi-million improvement programme which is rolling out across Kent, Sussex and Hampshire. It is seen as a vital infrastructure project to support the town's growth plans in the next few years.

More than £40million has been spent on upgrading Ashford's water system, including upgrading the wastewater treatment works and improvements to the sludge treatment works to enable sewage sludge to be treated so it can be safely used on farmland as fertiliser.

RIGHT CONNECTION: Good broadband speeds are essential, not a luxury, for businesses in rural areas

Rural firms will need cut of the broadband cash

■ BY STEVE KNIGHT

BUSINESSES based in rural areas must get help to improve internet connection speeds or face losing out to foreign competition.

Rural campaigners warned living standards will fall unless they are awarded a slice of £1 billion funding for broadband internet.

Andrew Bowles, chairman of the Rural Forum for the South East, said about half of all small and medium-sized businesses in the region are based in rural areas, but often suffer from slow broadband connections or none at all.

The UK is ranked a lowly 31 out of 66 European countries in terms of internet speed. So, the Government is setting up the Next Generation Access Fund to improve connections.

Mr Bowles said: "It's embarrassing and disastrous that the UK is so far down the league table and there are big implications for the British economy and jobs."

"It's becoming very difficult to run small businesses in rural areas without faster internet speeds and is forcing people to open new offices in towns, increasing their carbon footprint because they are driving further than they normally would."

"It's also having a knock-on effect on the rural communities, where before businesses would use the local post office or perhaps take clients out to lunch at the village pub."

"There's even a report that says the GCSE results of children who live in areas with inadequate internet access are 25 per cent lower, on average."

According to research by the Commission for Rural Communities, more than a quarter of people who live outside towns and cities do not have basic broadband, or can only get it at slow speeds.

Majority

Last week Virgin announced it will begin to roll out its new super-fast 100mb broadband service across the UK from the end of this year, after testing speeds of double that figure in Ashford.

Roger House, chairman of the Kent and Medway branch of the Federation of Small Businesses, agreed that for the majority of its 6,500 members, fast internet was essential.

He said: "Broadband is not an added luxury to today's small businesses but an essential service similar to utilities such as gas and electricity."

Last week the Government announced the formation of the Broadband Delivery UK body, which will be responsible for spending the £1bn fund to deliver faster internet speeds to 90 per cent of the country by 2017.

'Don't miss swine flu vaccinations'

PREGNANT women and others eligible for the swine flu vaccine are being warned of the dangers of turning down the jab.

Since the beginning of the outbreak in April, last year, there have been 22 confirmed swine flu-related deaths in the South East and 1,529 hospital admissions.

But despite the number of cases dropping steadily across the UK, the NHS in Kent says people in the at-risk groups should not assume they are no longer in the line of fire.

Catherine Plowright – the county's acting critical care network manager – said:

"Having worked for years in intensive care I am used to working with very sick people."

"What has struck me as different with people suffering from swine flu is the length of time people are taking to improve and move out of intensive care."

The swine flu vaccination programme began last October, with the jab being given to those at greatest risk first.

Anybody in the at-risk groups who has not yet been vaccinated should contact their local GP for more information on when the vaccination clinics are.

'Too early' to judge success of high-speed line, says minister

RAILWAYS minister Chris Mole says it is too early to judge the benefits of the new high-speed train service in Kent.

A new timetable launched to coincide with the start of High Speed 1 in early December has been heavily criticised by commuters, who say the level of service on mainline trains is now worse than ever despite the promise of more choice and less overcrowding.

Many claim the Southeastern schedule has instead led to longer journey times to London, a reduction in trains to Victoria and Cannon Street, and more delays and cancellations.

However, Mr Mole told MPs at Westminster Hall last Wednesday that it can take "some years" for a new market to reach its full potential.

He added: "That is not meant to imply the service is not being monitored rigorously, but it does mean that snap judgements will not be made about the success of the new services."

"Inevitably there have been changes to the timetable affecting other services but it is early days to judge the final pattern of usage and satisfaction in Kent."

Mr Mole made his point at an adjournment debate secured by North Thanet Tory MP Roger Gale, who is supporting two petitions against the new schedule signed by more than 1,000 commuters.

Inspectors praise boarding facilities

ASHFORD School's boarding services have been put to the test by OFSTED.

The regulators gave the independent school an overall rating of good, and managers say they are very pleased with the result.

About a third of students at the senior school in East Hill are boarders.

The inspection covered categories such as the health and wellbeing of students, helping them achieve what they hope to, helping them make a positive contribution to school life and the organisation of the boarding services.

Headteacher Mike Buchanan said: "Alongside the first-rate inspection reports on the school from the Independent School Inspectorate and on our Early Years from OFSTED, this report confirms the quality of the education and care provided throughout the school to all our children, pupils and students."

Learning logs big hit with children

YEAR five children at St Mary's Primary School in Ashford have been using new learning logs to organise their homework this year.

The logs encourage creative exercises for the children to show they have understood what they have been learning each week.

It has proved such a success that the scheme has been taken up by year three and four students at the school.

Work experience at hospital pays off for would-be doctor

Esme Crofton, 17, a sixth-form student at Highworth Grammar School in Ashford, writes about her work experience at a local hospital

AS has been widely reported, places at university are becoming more difficult to obtain, largely due to the economic climate.

At Highworth Grammar School we were warned of this and the importance of gaining work experience was emphasised.

Work experience is not a particularly popular term amongst many students, conjuring up images of making endless teas, filing and boredom.

So I felt fabulous when I walked out of the hospital where I had been given work experience for the last time. I wished I could have stayed for another week.

As a prospective medical student, I was lucky enough to gain a placement that related well to my future plans: working at a local hospital, based mainly in the respiratory department, although I did get to visit a variety of places.

On the morning of day one, I was whisked off to a lab, where I witnessed a bronchoscopy. It was amazing to see the workings of the lungs, and the consultant carrying out the procedure was really helpful, explaining what was happening with CT scans and X-rays.

Swine flu and other illnesses were explained when I visited microbiology, looking stylish in my oversized lab coat.

Later, I went on a ward round, the first of many during the week, where I met a variety of patients in varying stages of illness.

I was also lucky enough to be allowed to sit in on a clinic with a third-year medical student, who translated the medical jargon and explained what the consultant was talking about. The patient-doctor interaction was inspiring, and has given me a lot to talk about in future medical school interviews.

I thoroughly enjoyed this experience and would like to thank both the doctors and the patients for being so understanding.

I am exceedingly grateful to have had such a fantastic experience as these places are few and far between. I feel that I have learned a great deal that will be applicable to my future and my ambition to become a doctor has been strengthened.

INSPIRED: Work experience strengthened Esme Crofton's ambition to be a doctor.

Taxpayers are on expensive route

Just to add a bit more to Roger Arnold's letter about the government, via the EU, spending millions of pounds on roads mainly in the old Soviet Bloc countries – we are also giving away another £1.5 million to help so-called road safety projects in Africa and Asia. These have already benefited from a £3.5 million funding from the Department for International Development, for such purposes.

So British drivers with ripped tyres, bent wheels and damaged suspensions can carry on paying nearly a £1 billion per week in motoring taxes, while other countries can drive on first-class roads, courtesy of over-taxed British drivers!

Spring is a busy time for Men of Kent

Fifty-six members attended the Spring Luncheon and 98th Annual General Meeting of the Ashford & District Branch of the Association of Men of Kent and Kentish Men on Saturday, March 6.

Retiring President, Arthur Coulson, welcomed all present before passing the conduct of the meeting to Christine Strange (chairman), who was also retiring after admirably serving the Branch for three years.

In her report, Christine recalled members who had sadly passed away during the past year; Roy Laid, Bob Weekes, George Salmons and Peter Cozen – the latter two within days of the the A.G.M. and sincere condolences were expressed on behalf of all, to family and friends.

Christine continued, by presenting a cheque for £600 to Peter Hickman, treasurer of the Kennington Scouts Group, towards the cost of new headquarters. Their current premises, built almost sixty years ago, are now barely adequate and by sheer hard work, the group

Mobile photo studio owner talks to us about the business that visits Ashford town centre

Why did you set up a mobile photo studio?

Our photographer Paul is semi retired but he still wanted to run a studio but without all the overheads of having a shop on a high street. It enables us to have a fully equipped studio but keep our prices really low.

What sort of subjects do you specialise in?

We mainly take photos of babies and toddlers. We come to Ashford at least one day a week. Paul is a very experienced photographer. He started as an apprentice in London at Studio 6 taking photos of bands for their album covers in the 60s. One of the covers featured Roy Orbison.

How has photography changed?

Digital cameras have made a big difference. In many ways it has made things easier but I would say that we now spend just as much time on the computer instead of actually taking photographs.

have raised almost half of the required total of £330,000.

The Branch is continuing to support the group throughout the coming year.

Our many and varied social events of the past year were recalled. All had been well supported and we had been privileged in having such accomplished speakers as Amanda Cotterell (Chairman of Visit Kent) and Lt Colonel Mike Martin – of the Deal and Walmer Branch of our Association, to give time for our enjoyment. Equally enjoyable though an evening of totally different content, was our own member, Dennis Lee, presenting 'The Life and music of George Formby' with member participation.

The meeting concluded with retiring Arthur Coulson, presenting a token of Branch appreciation for her efforts, to Christine Strange, who assumed the Presidency. Whilst the Chair remains temporarily vacant, Marilyn Warner was confirmed as our new Secretary and Harry Clark continues as treasurer. The existing committee was re-elected 'en bloc' with the addition of Dr Don Allen and David Hooper – a new member and potential future chairman.

road crashes by 40 per cent within 10 years.

The Kent & Medway Safety Camera Partnership, which is responsible for the operation of safety cameras within Kent and Medway, has surpassed that target, reducing KSIs by 63 per cent across all of our safety camera sites since the Partnership was formed in 2002.

Yet despite this achievement, there are still those who believe that safety cameras are a waste of money and, worse still, actually cause more crashes than they prevent.

This is, unfortunately, one of many myths that have grown up around safety cameras over the past few years, perpetuated by negative stories in the media.

The reality is that since their introduction, safety cameras have consistently proved to be a very successful method of reducing casualties on the roads. In Ashford, for example, the number of KSIs dropped by 40 per cent between 2006 and 2008 compared to the three years prior to cameras being installed.

Critics of safety cameras have argued that they are dangerous because they encourage erratic braking and acceleration from drivers trying to avoid being 'caught', or that they distract drivers by making them constantly take their eyes off the road to check their speed.

I'd like to address both these points. Firstly, a major two-year Department for Transport study of safety cameras across six areas demonstrated that they do not increase crashes by leading to abrupt braking. Drivers are given ample warning that there's a safety camera ahead and the simple fact is that if they are already driving at the correct speed, they won't have any reason to suddenly brake when they approach a camera.

Secondly, it's not reasonable to claim that drivers are forced to watch their speedometers rather than the road ahead. Competent drivers should be able to check and maintain their speed without being unduly distracted.

There are a number of situations in which drivers need to be aware of what is happening on the road in directions other than immediately ahead. For example, when they use rear and side view mirrors and check at junctions and roundabouts in order to give way. These all require drivers to concentrate on sections of the road other than those straight ahead and there is no evidence to suggest that such short and temporary diversions of concentration are a safety risk.

If you'd like to know more about what the Kent & Medway Safety Camera Partnership does, and how and where safety cameras are used to make the county's roads safer, visit our new-look website, www.kmscp.org. The site will hopefully dispel any misconceptions you might have about safety cameras so do please take a look. The Partnership has achieved a lot in just seven years but to continue to reduce crashes and casualties at safety camera sites, we need your trust, support and co-operation.

Katherine Barrett, communications officer, Kent & Medway Safety Camera Partnership

Speaking out over antisocial behaviour

Over 900 fighting/dangerous dogs were detained last year in London.

A case of a London teenager, brought down by a gang's attack dog before he was stabbed to death has been reported. Dogs are now commonly used as weapons and to intimidate. I believe old people in care homes need their pets – otherwise the downward spiral of unsuitable and inadequate public housing will continue unabated.

But there are all kinds of dogs and uncouth owners as I responded to the blog about dogs, which are becoming a nuisance to others as I find my drive and front garden can be used as a dog toilet. The last person I tackled who used to use my ivy as a urinating stop was too embarrassed to reply and has now moved, but others are just as bad.

My opinion is that Carter and Gilroy ought to have been removed and summarily dismissed for their lack of due diligence (£millions lost in Iceland despite the warning email?) They are unfit for high office and I second Colin Davis of Woodchurch letter for Gilroy to give back his £200,000 goodbye gift, and the £12,000 he claimed for unused holiday. Why is he getting away with his poor management and financial negligence? Carter shows ill-judgement at best with his crazy Geldof TV and health telephone line, when do we get a break from these dopes in high places? Cllr Mark Reckless is correct, council taxpayers are being ripped off by the whole public/privatised partnerships of what to me is no better than a police and militarised state. I am a peace-seeking patriot, and rue the day party politicians got above themselves and drove disillusioned voters into the arms of BNIP/UKIP, none of whom will bring better conditions for unfairly-treated VIPs like my postman.

Somehow, gross insensitivity and inconsideration are on the rise. What about the lady who was violently shoved onto the railway line at Farningham when she objected to him smoking? She has been unable to return to work since recovering physically from the attack.

Increasingly I believe we are being constrained and restrained by our better judgement to staying silent, or looking the other way when antisocial acts take place in our presence or under our noses. Regarding the suicide leap by three asylum seekers in Glasgow, my husband and I would offer a home to a single refugee on a temporary basis. How many lonely, older people could also gain help and companionship from a refugee lodger? I know one old man who has a Gurkha family living with him. Their children call him grandad, he helps them with their English language and any bureaucratic problems. Why cannot we open our minds, hearts and homes? For me I could share my home. Living communally by choice in our own homes is not the worst option for any of us, especially compared to sheltered housing.

Hospitals could face strike action

A UNION is threatening strike action by some staff at three of the county's main hospitals over pay rates and employment conditions.

Results of the consultative ballot at GMB union are expected in two weeks and means porters, cleaners and catering staff may stage a walk-out.

Hospitals that could be hit are the William Harvey Hospital in Ashford, the Queen Elizabeth Queen Mother Hospital in Margate and the Kent and Canterbury Hospital in Canterbury.

If a strike is agreed, the union claims around 650 members of staff will not turn up for work and hospitals will be forced to close parts of their facilities.

Inconvenience

But a spokesman from the East Kent Hospitals University NHS Foundation Trust said the number of strikers would be lower, as many ancillary workers do not belong to the union.

"A strike may cause inconvenience to other staff, but it would have no affect on patients," he said.

The union is balloting over the 2006 Agenda for Change agreement, which looks to improve national pay rates and terms and conditions of employment, including holiday entitlement and unsocial hours pay.

But GMB's Mr Macklin said the union is unhappy with the savings targets and offer and has taken a consultative ballot of its members – mostly porter staff at Kent and Canterbury Hospital – to see if they want to strike.

He said: "The Trust was awarded Foundation status over a year ago, but has yet to implement the national agreement in full and to pay the back-pay."

Measures to stop vulnerable being victims

SOCIAL services chiefs say protection of vulnerable adults is a top priority.

The pledge comes in the wake of high-profile investigations into the deaths of mum Fiona Pilkington and vulnerable Manchester man David Askew.

Desperate Fiona, 38, killed herself and her disabled daughter Francecca Hardwick, 18, in Leicestershire in 2007 after authorities ignored her cries for help following years of abuse by a gang of thugs.

David, 64, who had a mental age of just ten, was "tormented to death" by youths. They harassed him for more than a decade.

Officials at Kent County Council – named as one of the top three local authorities in the country for its safeguarding procedures – are determined the same will never happen here.

A conference at Kent Police headquarters involving KCC, the NHS and a number of independent agencies, looked at a selection of programmes currently being undertaken to strengthen measures to protect vulnerable adults.

■ BY MARIJKE COX

Cllr Graham Gibbens, cabinet member for adult social care, said: "All councils in the UK were made to analyse what they were doing to ensure procedures where in place to tackle the issue.

"But we were already working on this. For KCC and Medway Council this has been a key priority for many years.

"Abuse can come in many different forms, for example financial – it doesn't necessarily have to be physical abuse. We're working hard to show that it is not tolerated here."

He added that where child abuse can often be detected by schools and health workers, for vulnerable adults it is not always so easy.

"Abuse is not just in a residential home or a day centre. It could be at work, college or at hospital – abuse can happen in any setting," he said.

Oliver Mills, managing director of adult social services and chairman of the Safeguarding of Vulnerable Adults Board for Kent and Medway, said raising awareness is key.

TRAGIC: Fiona Pilkington who killed herself and her daughter, inset, after years of abuse by gangs of teens

"Kent and Medway have had effective safeguarding in place for some time, but we must always continue to review this and see how we can improve," he said.

"We have a set of procedures in place and we work with different agencies, such as the police, the NHS and lots of independent organisations, to ensure vulnerable adults are protected.

"If we do learn that someone is being abused, for example financially or sexually, then an investigation is launched and this can sometimes lead to prosecution."

Mr Mills agreed with Cllr Gibbens that it is often harder to detect abuse with adults than children, but said a third of vulnerable people are receiving social care services – making it easier to identify.

Are you happy with your care?

A Kent County Council Approved Care Provider

- Do your carers turn up on time?
- If you pay for an hour, do the carers stay for an hour?
- Do the carers treat you with dignity and respect?
- Are the carers well trained?

If the answer to any of these questions is 'No', why not try Saga Independent Living, a company that delivers a quality service? Even if your care is funded by Social Services, you are entitled to change providers.

Our service is expanding and is currently available in most areas of Kent.

"Saga has enabled me to stay at home, otherwise I'd have had to go into a care home, which is something I don't want to happen." Mrs W, Kent move 'n' smooth

An interactive and fun way for school children to learn about the benefits of healthy eating and physical activity.

Pedal your way to 5 a day

Working within the Healthy Schools Curriculum children have a memorable experience, learning how to achieve the recommended 5 daily fruit and vegetable portions and the weekly 5x60 mins physical activity programme.

Our workshops, developed in consultation with a panel of health and education professionals, including a nutritionist from the Eastern and Coastal Kent PCT, consist of 30 minute interactive presentations, which can be individually tailored to the needs of each class and age range. They contain information on nutrition, exercise and hydration and conclude with each child having the opportunity to make a healthy, fresh fruit smoothie on our amazing human powered smoothie-bikes.

Move 'n' Smooth can be a great addition to your event. We can almost guarantee that few of your pupils will have seen anything like it. Our professional staff will ensure that the set up and service during the events go smoothly.

The Move 'n' Smooth we use only fresh ingredients to make certain all drinks served during the event will be of highest quality. We can provide menus which can be tailor made for your event.

Our presence at your school will always receive an overwhelming thumbs up.

Since it was founded move'n'smooth has worked in conjunction with the NHS, Change4Life, department of education the MEND child obesity programme and many more.

Even if you don't like dogs, new legislation proposals to control owners should worry you

We should paw for thought over even more ridiculous laws

PLANS were announced last week for compulsory insurance of your dog in case it bites someone and, probably, micro-chipping.

That's about £600 a year under Government plans to review the Dangerous Dogs Act.

It comes hot on the heels of a proposal to charge £60 for a competence test before you can even own a dog anyway. And that is an excellent example of more useless state interference.

Do not let it go ahead – it won't change anything. The responsible remain responsible – the scumbags will always be scumbags.

It's simply a case of another state curtailment on our civil liberties for no good reason at all.

Once again we have a knee-jerk reaction by MPs – who I believe have too little to do of any consequence since Europe makes the big decisions – following an isolated incident involving a sink estate toerag and his devil dog.

Twenty years ago the poorly thought out Dangerous Dogs Act was rushed through in the same way. Like the Foxhunting Ban, if this latest test over competence becomes law, who is going to ensure people obey it?

It may be an excuse I suppose for another round of made-up-jobs with councils (Dog Licence Enforcement Officers wanted, £25,000 a year, recruitment section, The Guardian), but surely it is time people made a stand.

Dogs are often unpredictable and there are undoubtedly some vicious mutts that should never be allowed out of a cage.

I do not own a dog nor do I have any wish to do so, however if you do, then that's fine by me.

I don't care whether it's for companionship or because a dog is the only thing that shows you love, or simply that you were conned by your kids and now you have to take it walking in the rain – if you want a dog, get on with it.

So long as you ensure it does not inconvenience me, then you, like everybody else, should be free to do as you wish. And that should apply to so many things in Britain: live and let live. But our freedoms are eroded at every turn.

I genuinely want our Government to ensure that enough time and money is spent minimising the risk of foreigners carrying out terrorist atrocities in the name of their god. But there should be no place in this once genuinely free country of ours for busybodies and the self-righteous to impose their view of right and wrong to everyday life with stupid laws and regulations.

I write this a little smugly, since I warned dog owners a few years ago they were set to be the next social group to be picked on and marginalised after smokers had been crushed.

That's done now, so it's you dog owners.

The anger over dog fouling fills letters pages and see the response to this blog on our website... people don't care about being bitten, they just want to avoid dog poop on their trainers.

So, now the smoker has been all but eliminated from society, the politicians were on the lookout for minority targets they despise – and dog owners are on the list, alongside the overweight, as an easy group to be picked on and bullied.

So, even if you hate dogs, despise foxhunters, and shun smokers, do not think that if you let the latest ridiculous proposal become law that you are striking a blow for an improved quality of life for yourself. It's only a matter of time before a new law is aimed squarely at you.

Colour up your world

■ Capelli Hair

UNISEX salon Capelli Hair was established four years ago in a premises which has been a hairdressers for years.

It is a very friendly local salon offering everything from up-to-the-minute colouring techniques to more traditional hair styling.

Sarah Tappenden runs the popular salon and is proud to call herself a one man band.

"I offer a warm, friendly and caring service – clients are my friends and are not just there to pay the bills," she said.

"I have always been interested in people and their looks and went to Thanet Technical College to study both hairstyling and business.

"My friend owned the business originally and approached me to see if I would like to take over a hairstyling business in the heart of Sutton Valence – an attractive and thriving village."

The salon is housed in a building which belongs to Sutton Valence School and is part of the faculty's historic site.

Sarah explained what is currently popular among clients who want to ensure their crowning glory is kept up to standard.

"I try to keep my treatments affordable and accessible for everybody as well as keep up with current colouring trends. Colour service is definitely one of the most popular at the moment."

Damon's latest action hero faces a crisis of conscience in Iraq

■ BY DAMON SMITH

WHEN American and British forces withdraw completely from Iraq – a military strategy which seems unthinkable seven years into the campaign – the lasting legacy won't be peace and democracy.

It will be a deep-rooted suspicion that the infamous weapons of mass destruction (WMDs), the supposed justification for the invasion, never existed.

The recent Iraq inquiry, chaired by Sir John Chilcot, provided no firm answers.

Award-winning British filmmaker Paul Greengrass and actor Matt Damon, the driving forces behind The Bourne Supremacy and The Bourne Ultimatum, offer one scenario in this riveting thriller set.

blitzkrieg

Based on the book Imperial Life In The Emerald City: Inside Iraq's Green Zone by journalist Rajiv Chandrasekaran, Green Zone is a breathless two hours of adrenaline-pumping action and political manoeuvring that places as much emphasis on emotionally-charged dialogue as the set pieces.

The film opens with a deafening bang on March 19, 2003 in Baghdad as Saddam Hussein's trusted general, Al Rawi (Naor), flees his headquarters in the midst of an Allied blitzkrieg.

Four weeks later, US Army warrant officer Roy Miller (Damon) and his team careen through the war-torn capital on the hunt for WMDs. Yet again, they draw a blank and Miller voices his frustrations, suspecting bogus intelligence.

A tip-off from a disgruntled local, Freddy (Abdalla), leads Miller and his crew to a meeting of Saddam's high-ranking advisors, including Al Rawi.

The general escapes, but another man is apprehended and Miller uses Freddy as a translator to interrogate the suspect about a notebook in his possession.

PASSIONATE: Matt Damon as Roy Miller, a soldier with a conscience in Green Zone

"He says the book has names and locations of El Rawi's safe houses," reveals Freddy.

Returning to base, Miller bypasses scheming Pentagon official Clark Poundstone (Kinnear) and his minion Major Briggs (Isaacs), and delivers the book to local CIA chief Gordon Brown (Gleeson), who asks for discretion.

"I thought we were all on the same side," replies Miller. "Don't be naive," mocks Brown.

Green Zone is distinguished by Greengrass's tour-de-force direction, galloping through the streets of Baghdad with handheld cameras so we remain uncomfortably close to Miller as he risks his life for a country he was entrusted to tear apart.

There is no better director of action sequences and we really feel like we are ducking for cover from enemy fire as pyrotechnic mayhem erupts around the cast.

Damon delivers a passionate performance as a soldier with a conscience, who doesn't understand the full extent of the conspiracy.

Kinnear and Gleeson relish their roles as duplicitous political pawns, and Abdalla curries sympathy as the Iraqi interloper, enraged by the arrogance of his so-called American saviours.

"It's not for you to decide what happens here," Freddy tells Miller.

We are certain his words will fall on deaf ears, because the West knows best. Doesn't it?

UNCOVERED: No surprises in Andrew Rawnsley's programme on Cameron

YOUR TV REVIEW

DISPATCHES – CAMERON UNCOVERED: Channel 4, Monday, March 8

■ BY JAMES ALEXANDRE

POLITICAL journalist Andrew Rawnsley has been making waves in Westminster recently with his apparent outing of the Prime Minister as a bully.

No sooner had his latest 800-page tome been released than he was on every peak-time news and discussion programme debating the various claims and counterclaims made for and against his findings.

Therefore it seemed canny and timely that he was recruited by Channel 4's Dispatches team (or was it the other way round?) to front their programme on Britain's would-be leader, weeks before a General Election.

A nifty name such as Cameron Uncovered promised to give us a fresh insight into someone who we already see on our screens and read about every day of the week.

But what lured me in was the sight of a Sunday newspaper headline which revealed the show's juiciest content.

Namely, that the Tory leader's wife Samantha may well have voted for Labour in the past and might not even place a tick next to her husband's own party come May.

In the end, the extraordinary claim by shadow arts spokesman Ed Vaizey passed by almost without notice.

What stuck in the mind was his awkward phrasing when referring to Cameron, saying: "Until you've got a chicken in place who understands the modernising agenda, you're not going to lay the modernising egg."

Rawnsley didn't challenge him on which came first, but more interviews followed with Chancellor-in-waiting and long-time friend George Osborne, who dismissed comparisons of their relationship with the embittered one of Blair and Brown.

Several references were made to Cameron's own background in marketing and PR, although one of New Labour's own architects Peter Mandelson came out on the attack, bringing up the former's membership of the notorious Bullingdon Club.

Then the scene quickly cut to shadow education spokesman Michael Gove, who said Mandelson was a Communist Party member in his student days and had travelled to Cuba to hear Che Guevara speak.

All of which took place with Rawnsley in the hot seat, inviting audience members to draw their own conclusions and hoping his own contribution will bring itself to bear come polling day.

Shooting star's chance to shine

ANGELOS EPITHEMIU

Wednesday, March 17

Orange Street Music Club, Canterbury

A TRUE Shooting Star visits Canterbury tonight for an evening of rib-tickling comedy.

The headline act of this week's regular comedy night will be Angelos Epithemiou, now a familiar face on Reeves and Mortimer's surreal BBC panel show, Shooting Stars.

After being hand-picked from the club circuit last year, Epithemiou is now a household name and a popular panellist on the highly successful show.

Dan Renton Skinner's comic creation is a down-at-heel owner of a roadside cafe whose deadpan delivery has audiences in stitches. Sometimes billed as 'anti-comedy', Skinner's aloof and bemused style has won countless fans because he acts as the perfect foil to Reeves and Mortimer's often frantic comedy.

Epithemiou arrived on Shooting Stars for the first time, with his ever-present carrier bag in hand, after Mortimer spotted him in a comedy club last year. He immediately saw the potential in this bespectacled character with greasy hair and dubious taste in anoraks.

Since then, his appearances on Shooting Stars have been a huge success, making him one of the most in-demand stand-ups in the country.

Angelos Epithemiou – pictured with his Shooting Stars co-stars – is not Skinner's first or only comic creation, as the comedian has appeared in many other stage shows, television series and even films. As a member of the Dutch Elm Conservatoire, he honed the craft of sketches and has appeared in the stage productions Mr Winchester, the Benders and the Warp.

Television appearances include sitcoms such as My Family, The Office Christmas specials and Coupling, along with sketch shows like the Katy Brand Show, Armstrong & Miller and Headcases. Other appearances include Mike Bassett: Manager, The Only Boy For Me, Swag, Haunted London, Seven Second Delay, Home Time, Victorian Empire and Pinky & Perky.

Comedy fans should not miss this chance to see Skinner perform as the bemused Epithemiou in a relatively intimate venue, as he is sure to go on and become a big star.

Shooting Stars was first broadcast in 1993 and made a triumphant return to television screens last year after an absence of several years. With its madcap hosts and bizarre challenges, the show soon became renowned for showing established celebrities in a slightly different light. Television presenter Mark Lamarr and high-brow novelist Will Self both reached new audiences with their roles as the deadpan team captains, while Ulrika Jonsson has been a permanent fixture as a team captain from the beginning of the show.

Vic Reeves – whose real name is Jim Moir – has been highlighting his artistic prowess in recent years, but he first rose to fame as a highly individual comedian. The former pig farmer and factory inspector landed his own television show, Vic Reeves' Big Night Out, and joined forces with former solicitor Bob Mortimer, creating a partnership that would still be going strong more than 20 years later.

They went on to achieve hit singles with cover versions of Dizzy and I'm A Believer, while giving their own unique take on the sketch show format with The Smell of Reeves and Mortimer. Major mainstream success came with Shooting Stars, co-starring Matt Lucas of Little Britain fame, who appeared as score-keeper George Dawes long before his own sketch show made him a star.

Angelos Epithemiou can be seen at Orange Street Music Club at 8.30pm. Tickets cost £6 and can be booked by calling the club on 01227 760801 or visiting the website at www.orangestreetmusic.com.

BJORN AGAIN

Saturday, March 20, Winter Gardens, Margate

DANCING queens will be in their element when Björn Again presents an evening of Abba-mania.

Rod Stephen's tour gives fans the chance to hear all their favourite Abba songs performed live, including hits from Mamma Mia. The voice of legendary DJ Tony Blackburn can also be heard introducing the hits of 1988, the year in which Björn Again was formed.

Stephen is a musician and director from Australia who decided to leave his previous career in metallurgical research to create a show that captured the best of 1970s music and fashion. Abba were the perfect inspiration for this show which is considered a satirical parody, rather than a tribute.

Featuring the hits that made Abba famous all over the world, it is a true feel-good experience that has audiences dancing in the aisles and reliving the glory days of this 70s super group. So put on your flares and platforms for an evening of fantastic pop.

The show starts at 7.30pm and tickets cost £17.50/£16.50. Book online at www.margatewintergardens.co.uk or call the box office on 01843 292795/296111.

TRIVIUM

Monday, March 22, Leas Cliff Hall, Folkestone

GET ready to head Into the Mouth of Hell when Trivium returns to Folkestone next week. When the American heavy metal band played headline tours in the UK back in 2005 and 2006, they received a warm welcome from music fans in this country. They resolved to return and have finally made good on their promise, visiting the Leas Cliff Hall as part of the 16-date Into the Mouth of Hell Tour.

Guests are to be confirmed, but fans can definitely look forward to an evening of fantastic rock as Trivium reminds them why the band was such a hit last time.

"The UK was the first place in the world to truly embrace Trivium and make us feel like we had a home away from home on stage," said singer-guitarist Matthew Heafy.

"It's been a long time since we've done a full-blown, multi-date headlining UK tour and man, have we missed it."

Doors open at 7pm and tickets cost £16.50. To book call the box office on 0844 847 1776 or visit www.leascliffhall.org.uk.

TOM LEWIS

Friday, March 9, White Lion Hotel, Tenterden

SONGS of the sea are performed by one of the folk world's best entertainers when Tom Lewis returns to Tenterden.

With more than 40 years' experience, Lewis is now a highly acclaimed exponent of nautical songs. Although he emigrated to the mountains of British Columbia in 1983, Lewis has his roots in the UK's folk tradition.

Born in Belfast, he moved with his family to Gloucester as a child and joined the Royal Navy as an engineering apprentice at 16. His interest in folk music and sea songs was sparked by his discovery of various folk singers while based in Scotland and they continued to have a strong influence on him.

Having established himself as a popular folk circuit entertainer while still in the Navy, he moved to Canada upon finishing his service and set out on the road with his wife Lyn. Twenty years on, he is still delighting listeners all over the world.

The Tenterden Folk Club concert will be held in The Saddlery at 8pm and tickets cost £6 in advance or £7 on the door. To book call 01233 626805 or email info@tenterdenfolkfestival.org.uk.

MAMER

Wednesday, March 24, Gulbenkian Theatre, Canterbury

INSPIRED by the wilds of China's Xinjiang province, Mamer's haunting music blends tradition with Western influences.

Hailed as one of China's most original and influential young artists, Mamer brings the past and future together in his highly-acclaimed music. His songs of the grassland have their roots firmly in traditional Kazakh folk song and dombra music, yet he also infuses them with elements of Western folk, rock and virtuoso performances on a number of instruments.

Now a cult figure on Beijing's underground scene, Mamer grew up in the strong musical tradition of Kazakh nomadic culture, yet developed a love of bands like The Doors, Yes and Pink Floyd. With his debut album, Eagle, he confirms his position as 'the father of Chinagrass' – honest, simple music that honours its roots and continues to evolve.

Using traditional instruments and lyrical, ambient sounds, Mamer breathes life into ancient tunes.

The concert starts at 7.45pm and tickets cost £10 or £5 for the first 200 Encore! Gulbenkian members. To book call 01227 769075 or visit www.gulbenkiantheatre.co.uk.

THE RIDDLE OF THE SANDS

Various dates, various venues

ENTER a world of suspense and espionage in the gripping play, The Riddle of the Sands.

Prior to a London run, Chalkfoot Theatre Arts is touring this thrilling production to a number of small venues across Kent once again. The exciting adaptation of Erskine Childers' Edwardian book, considered to be the forerunner of the modern spy novel, was made into a popular film starring Jenny Agutter and Michael York.

With two actors playing a variety of diverse characters, the play offers suspense, adventure and tongue-in-cheek humour. Set just before the outbreak of the First World War, the show sees two young men set out on a yachting expedition that turns into a dangerous spying mission.

The show can be seen at Temple Ewell Village Hall on Thursday; St Nicholas Church in New Romney on Friday; the Ellen Terry Barn Theatre at Smalhythe Place in Tenterden on Thursday, March 25 to Saturday, March 27 and the Theatre Royal Margate on Sunday, March 28.

Admission prices and box office details vary so visit www.chalkfoot.org.uk or call 01843 280077 to find out more.

ENCHANTING: Rude Mechanical Theatre's production of the Brothers Grimm's The Musicians of Bremen

Theatre group brings Grimm folk tales to life

FAIRYTALES by the Brothers Grimm are played out with charm and flair in The Musicians of Bremen.

On Sunday the Rude Mechanical Theatre Company will be giving a performance of their acclaimed family show at Astley Hall in Maidstone, the headquarters of Kent Music.

Suitable for children aged from three to nine and their families, this enchanting production is now on tour for a second year due to huge public demand.

When old donkey Bruno decides to run away, he is joined by a motley crew of friends with their own problems. Alberta the fox hound is scared of foxes, while the cat Cornelia is frightened of mice. Along with the noisy and magnificent rooster Fritz, the group decide to form a jazz band and become known as the Musicians of Bremen.

The show follows their adventures as they come across a posse of robbers and an abandoned baby, while learning about friendship, loyalty, courage, ambition, growing old and triumph over adversity.

The performance starts at 2.30pm and tickets cost £6/£4 or £16 for families of four. To book call 01622 358439 or visit www.rudemechanicaltheatre.co.uk.

WIN! Thomas the Tank Engine goodies

THOMAS the Tank Engine is coming to Westwood Cross Smyths toy shop this month.

Come down on March 30 and meet The Fat Controller, and to celebrate we have great Thomas The Tank Engine goodies to giveaway!

Thomas & Friends have been entertaining preschoolers everywhere for a huge 65 years. And now a collection of toys and games from Fisher-Price is set to help a new generation bring Thomas' adventures to life, including the all new Talking Engines.

Bringing your favourite trains to life like never before! Little fans can now enjoy exploits with the first ever collection of die-cast characters featuring their very own voices.

Just like in the hit movie, Hero of the Rails, Thomas fans can hear their engines speak for the very first time for even more interactive adventures. Push them along, the quicker you go, the more they 'choo choo'!

Little Thomas fans can recreate their favourite engines' adventures with a range of die-cast vehicles showcasing characters new and old.

Vehicles are available in small, medium or large scale depending on the size of the engines in the show. All are compatible with Take 'n'

Play Playsets.

Perfect for those engines who just never like to be seen on their own! The multi-packs come with themed coaches and tenders for extra adventure. Each durable die-cast character and coach features smart magnets, which allow them to be connected any way, and are compatible with all die-cast take along playsets.

Simply answer this question:

Q) Which shopping centre is the Fat Controller visiting on March 30 in Thanet?

Send your entry on a postcard along with your email address (if applicable), name, address, and daytime telephone number to Thomas & The Tank Engine Competition, KOS Media, Apple Barn, Smeeth, Ashford, Kent TN25 6SR.

The closing date is March 31.

Festival season is on its way!

HEADLINE ACT: Reverend and the Makers have been confirmed at Sellindge Festival

■ BY SIMON ROBINSON

LIVE music fans arise from your snow-induced slumber.

The arctic conditions have subsided and the balmy days of spring and summer are within touching distance.

And with the sunshine comes a plethora of now established and much-loved music festivals.

These include the family-focused Lounge on the Farm (Canterbury), Hop Farm Festival (conveniently situated at the Hop Farm, Paddock Wood) and the Sellindge Festival (near Ashford).

Dates aside, details are still sketchy to say the least, with festival organisers working around the clock to fill their line-ups with the best of Kent's up-and-coming acts, chart toppers as well as the odd genuine legend.

Sellindge Festival bosses have confirmed a number of top bands on their website, with the cream of the crop coming in the form of Reverend and The Makers.

The Sheffield-based outfit, famed for singles such as Heavyweight Champion of the World, He Said He Loved Me and Open Your Window, will take a top slot of the main stage line up.

They will be joined by the Grand Master of Reggae himself, the legendary Lee 'Scratch' Perry, who has been inspiring artists across the globe since he first shook up the industry in 1954.

Other confirmed performers include Jonny Foreigner, The Foxes, Laura Vane, Heels Catch Fire and The Gin Riots.

There's plenty on offer at the festival's four other stages, which include WoFo (world and folk), dance and BBC Introducing.

Sellindge is the first of Kent's major festivals and will be followed by Lounge on the Farm and the Hop Farm weekenders.

LOTF, held at Merton Farm, Canterbury, has earned a reputation as the county's best-loved, family friendly event, putting substance before size.

Meanwhile, the Hop Farm team

So much to see , just a short drive from home

■ BY PETER WOODMAN

STAYCATIONS – where people holiday in Britain to keep costs down – are all the rage at present, so we took ourselves off to Suffolk.

Our first stop was Newmarket, close to the racecourse which made this town world famous. We stayed at Bedford Lodge, an imposing hotel a short walk from the centre of town.

From the hotel we could see racehorses being led to the practice gallop areas.

In the town, there are numerous pubs and restaurants, as well as a national horse-racing museum, which traces the story of British racing from its Royal origins at Newmarket to the modern day. Visitors also have the chance to ride a racehorse simulator.

We drove to the nearby West Stow Anglo-Saxon Village and Country Park, where an old village from the period 420-650AD has been excavated and carefully reconstructed.

Our next stop was the historic market town of Bury St Edmunds. Our suite in The Angel Hotel looked over the town's main square to the splendid St Edmundsbury Cathedral.

Keen to keep St Edmund's memory alive, the locals built a great abbey to house the king's remains.

Thwarted in his attempt to make a pilgrimage to Santiago de Compostela, one abbot – Anselm – instead built a church to St James next door to the abbey in the 12th century. This became St Edmundsbury Cathedral in 1914, and we walked down the nave which was built by Tudor architect John Wastell, whose works include King's College in Cambridge.

Almost 50 years of work on the cathedral was completed in 2005, and has resulted in an imposing Millennium Tower, a complete rebuilding of the east end of the cathedral, and a new porch and cloisters.

It was only a short drive along the A143 from Bury to the sleepy village of Horringer for our final stop, and we thought we would try self-catering. That's how we ended up at The Old Piggery – a delightful converted cottage on the edge of the village.

Newly-renovated, this is a romantic base for couples with a beamed living area, luxury bathroom and splendid kitchen.

By now, the weather, which had been a bit patchy, had settled for hot sun and cloudless skies. Outside the cottage, bees invaded the lavender in a high-summer frenzy. We strolled through the village to The Beehive pub for a sumptuous meal.

Horringer is home to Ickworth House, home of the historic and eccentric Hervey family. Set in 1,500 acres of grounds, the house is a giant rotunda full of famous paintings, and has been under the care of the National Trust since 1956.

Peter's stay at The Old Piggery was arranged by Best of Suffolk, which offers two-night breaks from £225, three nights from £285, a week from £495.

Bury St Edmunds is handily placed for a seaside trip to Aldeburgh, a jolly town where we enjoyed a chilly, but bracing walk along the seafront.

There are plenty of restaurants close to the sea in a resort that has not changed much since the great days of the UK bucket-and-spade holiday.

Close to the seafront is the Moot Hall – the town's old meeting place, which dates from the 16th century and now houses a museum.

We also made the time for a stroll around Framlingham, a delightful market town which could be the prettiest spot in Suffolk. You can walk the ramparts of a quirky 12th century castle, which was modernised by Tudors who felt the need to add high, twisting chimneys.

The landscape is worthy of Constable, the great artist whose work brought this splendid corner of England to a wider audience.

So, rather than jet off abroad, book yourself a staycation instead.

Alfa's MiTo gets fitter from taking in the air

IT'S been on sale in the UK for just a year or so, but Alfa Romeo has already tweaked its stylish answer to the BMW Mini.

Amongst several improvements, the MiTo sporting supermini now has a MultiAir powertrain option answering a conundrum solved by few carmakers: how to lower fuel consumption and emissions while boosting power.

For the Italian star, the answer lies in sophisticated metering of air in the combustion cycle, hence the labelling for the popular 1.4-litre turbocharged petrol engine series (from £15,165).

Sixth generation BMW Five is a top attraction

BMW's new 5-Series saloon, on sale later this month, is the most highly anticipated new car of 2010, according to a poll.

The German carmaker's latest model took 20 per cent of votes to beat off competition from the new Audi A8 (14 per cent) and Jaguar XJ (11) in a survey by ContractHireAndLeasing.com.

Always a hit on the contract hire market, the sixth generation model is tipped to do even better than before by borrowing interior features and luxury from the director-level BMW 7-Series.

New 'F' grade all set to boost Lexus IS appeal

WHAT'S in a letter? Lots when you sell cars into the status conscious compact executive sector.

BMW employs the letter 'M' to denote sportier 3-Series models, Audi uses 'RS' and 'S' to boost the A4 line-up and wannabe Japanese rival Lexus is turning to 'F' to drive the IS range.

It stunned rivals with the IS-F V8 model, but this is a rare 'halo car'. What the IS really needed is the new F-Sport grade (£28,290) with exclusive alloys, grille, bootlid spoiler and cabin highlights.

UTTERLY ROOF-LESS: Peugeot have made improvements to the 207CC, with a roof that raises in 25 seconds and a more unisex appeal, but it is still no sports car in terms of style

There is a good spread of engines even if none packs much of a punch, and Peugeot has done a fine job making the 207CC feel rigid even in 'top down' mode – when the car looks best.

Despite a 2+2 layout, the rear seats will really only take children and are also horribly upright; should your tots fall asleep by some miracle, they will loll horribly as if dosed with alcopops to cut short any cries of "are we there yet?"

But the space is fine for shopping bags or luggage, especially when the roof is down and boot access slightly compromised.

Our 207CC test car was a highest spec GT model with the flagship diesel engine too and while this gives the car a lot of low down urge for pulling out of junctions and making progress on rural roads, it makes the Peugeot feel heavy. Having driven petrol models previously, I reckon they are the better bet here.

I also doubt whether a high specification is worth the money; you get alloys, air con and most other normal 'toys' on the Sport entry trim and trading up makes the 207CC look expensive against obvious rivals such as the Mini Convertible and Mitsubishi's Colt CZC.

The new Superb Estate. Bigger. Better. Happier.

With a class leading 1,865 litres of boot space, colour touch screen satellite navigation, bluetooth, and full leather upholstery as standard*, no wonder it was voted Top Gear's Luxury Car of the Year 2009. Starting from £17,715 RRP.

What Car? magazine has given the new Superb Estate an excellent write-up in its first review, calling the car "big, comfortable, plush and fine value".

The magazine was particularly impressed by the value-for-money offered by the Superb Estate, saying it's, "cracking value and undercuts the equivalent Mondeo Estate by thousands."

USED CAR ROUND-UP: OUR PICK FROM A KEY SECTOR

SMALLER 4x4s

IT'S not hard to see why compact 4x4 or sports utility vehicle (SUV) sales boomed ahead of the recession. By combining trendy off-road looks and high riding MPV versatility carmakers scored a double bull's-eye. Hi-tech diesels also allowed owners to buy image without paying wallet-busting fuel prices, but even small 4x4s are now seen as less socially and environmentally acceptable and used prices have fallen. However, one person's distress sale can be another's bargain buy – three of the best are featured here.

carsforkent.co.uk

HONDA CR-V

HONDA'S CR-V is one of the best compact SUVs, but sales of the smart first generation car were hamstrung by the lack of a diesel option. That changed with the more rugged Mark II (pictured) and continues through the current and more stylish model – one of the smoothest, quietest and most economical diesels in the sector. All CR-Vs have smart, durable and versatile cabins, plus Honda reliability and, latterly, a 'Made in Britain' tag from production at Honda Swindon.

TOYOTA RAV

TOYOTA'S original RAV4 was dubbed 'the GTI off-roader' and revolutionised the small 4x4 sector. The Japanese marque recognised that few 4x4s actually went anywhere where they needed extra traction, so it concentrated on maximising on-road performance and comfort – the RAV was a huge success. The Mark II (pictured) was chunkier and roomier with removable rear seats while the current range has folding rear seats. Marks I and II included three as well as five-door models.

KIA SPORTAGE

KIA pretty much copied the RAV4 formula to create the Sportage, but this is no poor copy. Early examples couldn't match the driving experience of the RAV, but interior build and general rough ground ability is impressive. A midlife makeover boosted quality and on-road handling and attracted an awesome seven-year warranty. Diesels are the best buys, purely on grounds of economy. Shop around and you can also save on the two-wheel drive version, a recent introduction to the range.

PROPERTY NEWS

Trackers no longer the bargains they seemed

Steve Osborne, The Mortgage Man, shares his expertise with you in this new fortnightly column

A HEALTHY rise in house purchases over the past three months suggests that the spring sunshine has managed to warm up the housing market, even if it is still struggling to chase off the cold and frosty weather.

It is perhaps appropriate for this first column to begin with the welcome news that the shoots of recovery really are beginning to show.

The Mortgage Company has seen a noticeable rise in purchases over the past three months.

Before the recession there was a lot of interest in tracker mortgages – but are they still such a good deal now, or would you be better off looking at one of the fixed rate products?

Before the financial crisis, lenders were offering tracker rates as low as 0.1 per cent above Bank of England Base Rate, which was up to 5.75 per cent.

Since then, the base rate has fallen to an all-time low of 0.5 per cent, but lenders have steadily increased their tracker margins to an average of 2.5 per cent above base. The cheapest deal is currently 1.44 per cent above base, but this comes with a big fee, and a more realistic rate would be between 2.5 per cent and three per cent.

Compare that with current fixed rates, which start at 2.89 per cent for two years, and you start to see that trackers are no longer that special, and fixed rate mortgages will give you absolute certainty over your monthly payments.

With an election looming and a huge amount of government borrowing to repay, you might think rates could rise. There is no realistic opportunity for rates to fall, and the reassurance of knowing how much you are going to have to pay may balance the slight extra cost at the outset.

Check tenants to avoid criminal damage costs

■ BY NICK AMES

PRIVATELY-rented properties throughout the UK are being targeted by criminal gangs as a smokescreen for brothels and drug factories.

According to the National Landlords' Association (NLA), gangsters are attracted to rented properties for growing cannabis and manufacturing crystal meth because they are often in quiet residential areas where their activities can continue undisturbed.

Not only is the activity illegal, it could also pose a substantial fire risk as electricity cables are wired up or bypassed.

"If they are caught it is not the criminal tenant who has to foot the bill for damages to the property but the landlord," said David Plaister of landlord's group LetAssured UK Ltd.

One professional landlord reported that repairs to two of his properties that had been used to grow cannabis cost more than £20,000.

The criminals had removed internal walls and disconnected the properties from the mains electricity, thus by-passing the meter.

LetAssured recommend that landlords ensure that their tenants are comprehensively referenced using advanced data monitoring.

Mr Plaister said: "We would include credit checks, employer references and previous landlord references in our search."

"We empower landlords to visit their properties on a regular basis and not leave this to a managing agent, should the property be managed."

The NLA also recommends that landlords who suspect their tenants of criminal activity do not confront them but go straight to the police.

NLA chairman David Salusbury said that in many cases landlords could face repair bills of thousands of pounds, as many insurance policies are rendered invalid when criminal activity takes place in a property.

His comments came as police in the UK called on insurers to add clauses to policies so that landlords are no longer covered if their properties are damaged by cannabis growers.

CANNABIS FACTORY: By-passing electricity meters could pose a substantial fire risk to your property

The police want landlords to be registered along with their properties, and the properties to be inspected by local authorities.

The association highlighted five ways for landlords to combat criminal gangs:

- Take detailed references. These should include a credit check, and references from their employer and their current landlord.
- Don't take rent up front. Often criminals offer this as a way to ensure they are left alone.
- Check on the property regularly. This can be done at least quarterly or more regularly if you have concerns, provided you have given sufficient notice.
- Get to know the neighbours, as they can alert you to any suspicious activity.
- If you have suspicions of criminal behaviour do not confront your tenant. Go straight to the police.

Mr Salusbury said it was vital that landlords were aware of the threat criminals posed.

He said: "Criminal activity not only has an impact on the landlord's property, but on the community as whole."

"The production of some drugs involves highly flammable material, which poses a dangerous fire risk. More worryingly, criminals use the proceeds of their crime to fund other, more serious crimes, such as people trafficking."

"You may think 'it will never happen to me', but these incidents are on the increase. The checks you make before a tenant moves in are a key way to prevent becoming a victim of these crimes."

Cut out estate agent for better deal, says expert

A SHAKE-UP in how property is sold could help people get a better deal, a report from the Office of Fair Trading has suggested.

Industry expert David Amstell, founder of property website Briffy.com, which offers online property listings for just £55, said regulations to allow vendors to put their homes online themselves would "cut out the estate agent and all the nonsense that comes with them".

He claims that property prices go up because of the hype that agents create.

"If it wasn't for agents, property prices would probably be a lot lower," Mr Amstell said. "And, in reality, agents for the most part only do what vendors could do themselves – list their property online", he added.

The OFT report found that updating legislation to allow new entrants into the market could give buyers and sellers a better arrangement.

It highlighted weak competition between agents on fees and the correlation between rising house prices and higher charges.

Sessional Support Workers

£8.30 -£9.46 per hour

Based in Ashford

Contract from April 2010 to March 2011 (subject to funding)

Thanet Children's Participation Project works with children and young people to enable them to engage in positive activities, contributing to their communities and making their voices and opinions heard.

We're looking to expand our team of fun, creative and approachable Disability Support Workers. As a Sessional Worker your focus will be to provide support and positive play and leisure experiences for children and young people with disabilities, in a scheme that runs on 2 weekend days per month, 15 days during the school summer holidays, and an additional 2.5 days during the October half term.

You'll need to have experience of working with children and young people with disabilities, knowledge and understanding of the issues facing disabled children and young people, and the ability to engage with young people using participative methods in an informal setting. Reliability and punctuality are a critical element of this role.

You'll be educated to GCSE standard (or equivalent). Hours for this post will be variable and appointment is subject to an enhanced CRB disclosure.

For an informal discussion about this role, please contact Donna Ramm on 01843 596659.

As well as a strong commitment to your development, we offer generous holidays, contributory stakeholder pension, childcare vouchers and flexible working.

To apply, please visit www.playyourpart.co.uk or call us on 0121 362 8633 quoting reference number 501718/KS.

Closing date: 1st April 2010.

All recruitment documents are available in alternative formats. Please note that CVs will not be accepted.

The Children's Society is a leading children's charity committed to making childhood better. We work with children across the country, providing the right support at the right time. We commissioned The Good Childhood Inquiry; the UK's first independent national inquiry into childhood. Its aims were to renew society's understanding of modern childhood and to inform, improve and inspire all our relationships with children.

PUBLIC NOTICE

DIOCESE OF CANTERBURY PARISH CHURCH OF ST MARY THE VIRGIN, ASHFORD

Take notice that the priest-in-charge and churchwardens (on behalf of the Parochial Church Council) are making application to the Commissary Court of the Diocese for permission to carry out the following works:

- To install a ground source heat pump in the church boiler room (below the vestry) together with any necessary radial boreholes and pipes below ground in specified parts of the churchyard, carefully planned to avoid any interference with interments or tree roots
- To install a rainwater harvesting tank

The purpose of the works is:

- To make substantial improvements to the heating of the church (which is presently inadequate) in an environmentally responsible and cost-effective manner, in particular by the introduction of a sustainable heating system which will reduce the church's reliance on fossil fuels and make use of renewable energy sources
- To facilitate the re-use of rainwater, which will also contribute to a reduction of the church's environmental impact.

These works will be subject to the grant of a Faculty. Plans and specifications are available for inspection at the Church; Ashford Tourist Information Centre, Churchyard, Ashford, TN23 1QG; and Ashford Borough Council, Reception, Civic Centre, Tannery Lane, Ashford, Kent TN23 1PL.

Anyone wishing to comment on or object to the proposals should write to the Diocesan Registrar, Minerva House, 5 Montague Close, London SE1 9BB to arrive no later than [14th April] 2010.

CLINICAL: Ashford (with ball) took their chances and returned to winning ways with a deserved victory

Murray brothers in mint form for town

Ashford 21 Gillingham Anchorians 15

TRIES from brothers JJ and Liam Murray helped Ashford return to winning ways with a deserved victory against Kent 1 rivals Gillingham Anchorians.

After failing to take their chances in a narrow 20-7 defeat against league leaders Dartfordians in their last outing, Ashford responded with a clinical display of attacking rugby.

The home side took the lead on 25 minutes with a try from JJ Murray, which he converted to give Ashford a 7-0 lead. A second try followed shortly before the interval, this time from Liam Murray, but brother JJ missed the conversion.

Two penalties from the boot of JJ Murray either side of Gillingham's first try of the afternoon ensured Ashford extended their lead to 18-5 at the break.

Gillingham fought back in the second-half and soon cut Ashford's lead to eight points with their second try of the game. A third followed and Ashford's control on the game loosened, with just three points separating the sides.

Despite losing debutant Rory Beech to a sin bin late in the game, JJ Murray secured the victory by converting a penalty in the dying minutes.

Ashford head coach Dai Fussell said: "The performances in the last few weeks have been good, but on Saturday there were fewer mistakes and the boys took their chances. It was a good result for us because the boys have been working hard in training and got their just rewards."

"We've got to play Gillingham again this Saturday and having already played them it should give us an advantage. Hopefully they will continue to use their catch and drive style of play."

RESPONSE: Kent chairman George Kennedy hit back at "flack" he took regarding Kent's financial predicament, saying he has loaned the club hundreds of thousands of pounds

Kent bosses set to unveil new chief at club's AGM

CRICKET

■ BY GLENN PEARSON

KENT members will be the first to meet the club's new chief executive when he is unveiled at the county's Annual General Meeting on March 29.

It's understood the club's committee has decided on the man they want to lead Kent cricket forward and are hopeful their preferred candidate will accept the post in time for the meeting at the end of the month.

County chairman, George Kennedy, wouldn't be drawn on who that man is, although it is known acting chief executive Jamie Clifford was one of those interviewed.

The chairman responded to "flack" he took last week in the wake of the club's dire financial results, by revealing he has loaned the county "several hundred thousand pounds."

The Scot was so upset with comments made about the financial results to the year October 31, 2009, and his role as chairman, that he decided to spill the beans about a loan he gave to the club some weeks ago.

The county club announced a deficit of £802,452, which included £190,000 for the two summer pop concerts last year.

Kennedy, obviously aware of the financial position the club was in, decided to use his own money by way of a loan to help Kent through. He wouldn't disclose as to how much that was, but explained he wanted to do his bit for the good of Kent cricket.

"I put some money into the club because mainly I went to the banks and although they were very helpful, they are very expensive. With the interest rates and other fees coming into it, I thought if we could avoid that then we'll do it, so I decided to put some of my own money in.

"It's an act of good faith and I hope people will realise that I am doing my best to support the club in every possible way."

The 69-year-old was hopeful of keeping the loan quiet, but felt the reaction from the club's members and supporters this week after the results were made public, forced his hand.

He said: "We decided to keep it quiet and it was done several weeks ago, but I got so much flack from people saying 'he doesn't care, he doesn't do this, he doesn't do that' so I thought it was time people realised that I do care and I am trying to do something about it."

"I keep telling people it's a members' club and members have to help. I'm a member and that's my gesture."

ASHFORD Town moved out of the Ryman South relegation zone after completing a resounding win against relegation rivals Walton Casuals.

With points becoming even more crucial as the season reaches its climax, Ashford manager Steve Lovell was left a pleased man after watching his side record what's likely to prove a valuable three points.

Walton Casuals created the first opportunity of the game, when Daniel Lawson's free-kick caused havoc in the area, but goalkeeper Scott Chalmers-Stevens came to the rescue, making a smart save low to his right.

Ashford settled into the game and took the lead on 15 minutes with a strike from defender Laurence Harvey. A Mitchell Sherwood corner was missed by goalkeeper Chico Ramos and Harvey was on hand to fire into the bottom corner.

The goal gave Ashford confidence to push forward and Ross Morley forced an acrobatic save from Ramos.

The home side hit back shortly after the half-hour mark with a thumping finish from Peter Rapson that gave Chalmers-Stevens no chance.

Town fought back and on the stroke of half-time they regained the lead. Again Ramos was at fault as he failed to hang on to a Mark Lovell shot, which allowed Tom Murphy to steal in and tap into an empty net.

The visitors should have scored a third within minutes of the restart to put the game beyond Walton. Lovell and Joe Fuller combined on the edge of the area to set up Sherwood, but the former Sittingbourne man fired high and wide when well placed.

Ashford's third goal arrived four minutes later courtesy of Harvey. Murphy managed to skip his way into the area before firing a shot which Ramos again failed to hang on to, leaving Harvey open to slam home from close range.

Walton rarely threatened the Ashford goal in the second-half and Lovell's side wrapped up the three points on 88 minutes with an emphatic fourth goal. Jeffery Jackson handled in the area and Sherwood calmly slotted home the subsequent spot-kick.

The three points moved Ashford out of the drop zone and above relegation rivals Whitstable Town on goal difference.

DELIGHT: Steve Lovell is delighted with his team's form

We're not clear of danger yet, warns Town boss Lovell

AFTER an impressive 4-1 win against Walton Casuals at the weekend, Ashford Town boss Steve Lovell is urging his players not to let their performances drop for the remaining 13 games.

A brace from defender Laurence Harvey and goals from Tom Murphy and Mitchell Sherwood wrapped up a comfortable win in a crucial relegation six-pointer on Saturday.

The Ashford manager was delighted with the performance, but warned his players there is a long way to go before their Ryman South fate is secured. Town have 13 games remaining this season and six in the next two weeks.

With the amount of games coming up in a short space of time, Lovell's main concern is ensuring his players stay fit for the all important run in.

He said: "It was a very good win, especially as they are also down the bottom end of the table. It was a very important three points, but we have got to maintain the momentum now. There is a long way to go, but we are certainly in the mix after the results we have picked up."

"If we can continue the level of performances in the last five games, we should be okay. However, we have got a lot of games left and a tough spell coming up so keeping everybody fit is going to be an issue."

Ashford face arguably their toughest test of the season to date, when they return to action tonight against league leaders and near neighbours, Folkestone Invicta.

The last time the two sides met in December, Town lost 1-0, but Lovell is feeling much more confident about Ashford's chances, following four wins from their last seven games.

He said: "Folkestone will be a tough game but it is one all the boys are looking forward to. They have been going very well this season, but if we can keep performing like we have been, we should give them a game."

HAPPY: Leon Camier is pleased with how he is being treated at Aprilia alongside experienced team-mate Max Biaggi

Camier unaffected by the Max factor at new team

SUPERBIKES

LEON Camier insists he is being treated fairly at Aprilia and played down concerns he will play second fiddle to team-mate Max Biaggi in the World Superbike Championship.

The 23-year-old, who joined Aprilia for the 2010 World Championship in November, is adamant he is being given the same treatment as his experienced team-mate, who is tipped to launch a title push this year.

The Ashford rider has stated he is to use this season as a learning year, but says he intends to push Biaggi all the way.

He told crash.net: "I know Max has developed things I haven't tried, but it isn't a big problem. In the races for Aprilia I did last year, Max had a different kit based on what he'd developed through the year, but in testing, I tried one of Max's swingarms, which was supposed to be better – and it was, so I got one as well.

"They have been fair and that's all I ask. Max is obviously their number one for the title, but they aren't hindering me or taking parts from me. I will push hard to beat him but will also be careful not to knock him off as it's not in my interest to do that."

Camier heads to Portugal's Portimao circuit next Saturday for the second round of the championship. After missing out on two top-ten finishes last time out at Phillip Island, he is eager to bounce back.
